HUGE WARD MEETINGS

REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES LAST NIGHT LARGEST EVER KNOWN.

Not a Contested Delegation Reported -Ferd Winter to Preside Over County Convention To-Day.

At 11 o'clock this morning the joint representaitive convention for Marion and Shelby counties will meet in Maennerchor Hall and at 1 o'clock this afternoon the Marion county convention will be had at the same place to choose judges of the Superior Court and six members of the Legislature. In the first convention there will be 196 delegates and in the latter there will be 422. The primaries to select these delegates were held in the different wards of the city last night and in the out townships yesterday afternoon. The attendance at the primaries was in keeping with the number of candidates that will be presented to the convention from which to select tickets. The attendance, in fact, was unprecedented, and in every ward the rooms wherein the primaries were held were crowded to the doors. In many wards where there are large Democratic majorities Republican primaries have generally proven tame affairs and failed to attract crowds. It has frequently been the case that not enough would attend a primary to fill out the quota of representation to which the ward was entitled and it would be necessary to elect as delegates persons who did not attend the primary. The average attendance at the primaries last night was about five hundred. In some wards the number exceeded this. All of the Southside wards, and even those in the southwest, where Democrats have been as numerous as sands on the sea shore and Republicans as scarce as "hen teeth," had large attendances last night.

In the First ward there were fully five hundred persons out; a like number attended the meetings in the Third and Fourth wards. In the latter ward the attendance was the largest ever known, and there was a lively interest taken in the selection of the delegates. There were no "scrimmages," not even in the Tenth ward. Such universal harmony as prevailed in every ward has probably never before been witnessed. It was especially significant of the unity of the party at this time when there is such intense interest in the contests for nominations. The conventions will be able to proceed immediately to business to-day, when called to order, and will not have to settle the rights of opposing factions to seats upon the floor. Not a contest has come up from a single ward. In all the wards there were more or less of contests for the delegations, and it was

The friends of the various candidates have been working for several days to get delegations favorable to their men, and the electioneering did not stop till the last ballot was cast at the ward primary. It was nearly 11 o'clock before all of the was nearly if o'clock before all of the ballots were counted in some of the wards. Some of the wards instructed delegates to vote for candidates from the particular ward, giving the instructions, but instructions were generally fought against, the delegates preferring to go into the convention unhampered by binding instructions. The Second ward instructed its delegates to the county convention to vote for L. to the county convention to vote for J. L. McMaster and Hez Daly for judges of the Superior Court and the Third ward instructed its delegates to vote for Will Elliott for judge of the Superior Court. The Eleventh ward gave instructions for John McGregor for member of the Legislature. In the Twelfth ward a resolution was adopted instructing for the three candidates

POPULISTS AGAIN IN TROUBLE. Trespassed on Monument Grounds-Action to Be Taken.

The Populist leaders again find themselves in trouble. A public meeting, at which S. J. Kent, secretary of the general executive board of the Carpenters' and Joiners' International Brotherhood, was to be the principal speaker, was announced to be held in Monument place, last night, at 8 o'clock. A few minutes before that hour a stand was placed close to the steps leading to the entrance of the monument, a skyrocket sent up, and "Kid" Ballard mounted the stand and announced that the meeting was opened. Hardly had he uttered the first sentence when he was interrupted by Pres-ident Langsdale, of the Monument Com-mission, who told him that the meeting would not be allowed to take place on ground owned or controlled by the commission. The stand was then removed to the street, a few feet from the Morton statue, where Ballard introduced S. J. Kent, the principal speaker. During that gentleman's remarks a crowd of two hundred gathered, a part of whom encroached upon the monument grounds and obstructed the walk to the entrance. Although President Langsdale raised no objection to this, it is understood that he will file charges of trespass, this morning, against those that managed the meeting. 'Mr. Kent's remarks included a rebuke to the last Congress, which he said ought to be ashamed of its record. He said that the hard times were caused by the high tariff, which he compared to the Chinese wall. He said that the present system of politics was rotten to the core, as was plainly evident from the investigations of the New York city police force and of Pet Stock Association to Give a Show in November.

The Indiana State Poultry Association. at its meeting, Thursday night, decided not to give any show this winter, but those who are fond of poultry and pets will not be disappointed. During the week beginning Nov. 12 the Indiana Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, which had charge of the exhibit at the State fair this week, will give an extensive exhibit. The display at the fair was a fine one, but the association promises to make the one in November much more elaborate. Many visitors at the fair noticed the big Angora cat belonging to Mr. Harry Tutewiler, of this city, and the evidence of interest in cats was so plain that the association has decided to add an exhibit of cats at the coming show. Pussy has never entered into a competition for red ribbons before in Indiana, and it is expected that the novelty will be a taking one. The ornamental poultry department, embracing pea fowls, pheasants and the like, will be a feature of this show, which is to be given at Tomlinson Hall the week Tenth Ward-County-W. P. McBride, Chas. FAIR WEEK BUSINESS

LARGELY INCREASED PATRONAGE REPORTED BY RETAILERS.

Wholesalers Do Not Find the Fair to Be of Great Advantage to

Fair week was practically ended last night, and while it has not proven a bonanza to all the merchants, it has served to bring largely increased patronage to most of the retail dealers. The effect of the fair week upon the business of the different merchants depends very much upon the class of goods they handle. To some of the merchants fair week always proves a disturber, and they are giad to see it over with so far as their business is concerned. The dealers in small wares generally find a largely increased trade during the week, probably due to the fact that the purchasers can carry their purchases home in their hands without inconvenience. The dealers in large wares find the reverse to be the case. The visitors generally do not purchase such articles, and as a large number of the out-of-town merchants and dealers are not at their homes it is impossible for the traveling salesmen to see them. Compared with the fair week of last year this week has been an exceptionally good one to Indianapolis merchants, but they do not make their comparisons with last year's business, but that of the year before. This is because last year, at all times, was an exceedingly bad year, falling way below normal in the volume of business. On the other hand, 1892 was an exceptionally large business year, and a comparison of that year with this, just emerging from the panic, would not be just to the showing for this year. The opinion of the retail merchants generally is that the volume of business is rapidly on the increase, and most of them say that the fair week has been better than they anticipated. A trip through the wholesale district and inquiries among the wholesale merchants showed that fair week was generally not beneficial to them save in one particular. This particular is that the low rates generally brings large numbers of their customers to the city and enables the wholeale men to become personally acquainted with the men with whom they deal. This has been especially true of the present year, on account of the unusually low rates given by the railroads for the fair and "The Last Days of Pompeti." The out-of-town merchants take advantage of the low rates to visit the city and examine stocks in the wholesale houses. some lines of goods this results in increased purchases, while in other lines it does not. Some of the wholesale merchants say that they only keep open during the week to meet their old customers, and their stores are sort of reception houses for the time being. Most of the wholesale houses say that the week cuts very materially into the orders received from their traveling men, and a great many of the houses call their traveling salesmen in during that week, and they remain at the house and meet there such of their patrons

The proclamation of Mayor Denny asking all the business houses and manufacturing establishments to close their places of business yesterday afternoon was not complied with to any appreciable extent. All of the wholesale grocers closed their stores yesterday, but this was the only line of business that paid attention to the request. A business man said that they would not think of closing their places during the afternoon, because their patrons expected them to be open to accommodate them. One retail merchant expressed himself in unmistakable terms. He said the idea of calling on the business men to close their places was preposterous, because the greater part of the visitors who came to the city came with the view to making purchases while here, taking advantage of the low rates to get to this city, where they would find a larger assortment than in their own stores. "Suppose I closed my store," said this merchant. "I will venture the assertion that not 5 per cent. of my clerks would attend the fair. A much larger number of them would probably go to see the game of ball. There is nothing at the fair that will interest them, and they will not spend their business that paid attention to the reest them, and they will not spend their time and money in seeing it. If the State board or city officials desire that the home people attend the fair let them provide attractions that will draw and arrange for them seeing it when they have the time. Let them provide attractions at night and keep the fair open until a late hour. Then they will have an attendance from the clerks and arreleves of the stores and not clerks and employes of the stores, and not till then. The clerks are not going to squander an afternoon off by going to a State fair unless there is something to at-tract them." The same sentiment was voiced by several merchants.

The expressions of several merchants, wholesale and retail, upon the business of the week are given below:

M. O'Connor & Co.—It was only an ordinary State fair week. As usual during that week the sales from our men on the road were lighter than usual, but the house sales were much increased. This is due to the fact that the outside merchants have come to the city, and the men upon the road are unable to see them, and while in the city they call at the store and leave their orders for such goods as they may

Ward Brothers, wholesale druggists-Lots of our customers have called upon us during the week, though the purchases were generally small. Our business in the were generally small. Our business in the house has been good, but that of the salesmen upon the road has been light, owing to their inability to see the men.

Hollweg & Reese, wholesale china and queensware—The week has been an unusually good one with us. This might be said of the last four weeks, which, we believe, have been up to any of the times before the recent panic. We have called most of our traveling men into the house most of our traveling men into the house, and they have been here during the week meeting our patrons in the store. The week has been better for us than previous State fair weeks, and we have been kept pretty busy. The purchases are larger than usual, and our patrons seem to be stocking up ahead, something they have not done since along in 1892. A great many of our patrons have purchased stock for Christmas trade, a thing they have not done at this early season since 1892. The fair week is generally a good one for us, for the reason that goods are displayed to much greater advantage in our store than can be greater advantage in our store than can be done by sample, and the patron sees a larger assortment. The low rates bringing the people to the city gives us an opportunity to display a larger assortment of wares to them. Last year was a bad year. There was the panic, first, to contend with, and then we had poor crops and low prices. This year the panic is about ended and the crops are good.

Daggett & Co., wholesale confectioners—The State fair is no advantage to our business. A good many of our patrons call ness. A good many of our patrons call upon us and we are glad to see them and show them through the house. We give them some candy to take home to the them some candy to take home to the children, have a pleasant time with them and part with a handshake, both we and they having enjoyed the call. Our sales do not amount to much, however. The purchases are small and the increase of business at the house is more than counterbalanced by the loss of sales by the men upon the road on account of their inability to see patrons. Our trade, generally, falls off during fair week.

R. S. McKee & Son, wholesale shoe R. S. McKee & Son, wholesale shoe dealers—The week is no advantage to us in the way of trade. In fact, it is a disadvantage. Our sales do not come up to the advantage. Our sales do not come up to the average in that week.

Fainley & McCrea, wholesale milliners—We have been busy all the week, and it compares very favorably with other weeks during the State fair. The advantage to us comes in the fact that we are able to display our goods to a better advantage to our patrons when they come to the house than we are through traveling salesmen.

Indiana Cigar Company—The fair week is always a bad one for us. A good many of our patrons drop into the house to see us, but our sales are not large from this our patrons drop into the house to see us, but our sales are not large from this source. We are glad to see the fair over.

Bowep-Merrill Company—The week has been a good one with us. Our store has been pretty well crowded. A great many of the sales, however, are small ones, and it takes a large number of them to amount to much. Lots of people drop into the store and buy a cheap book or two. The sales of school supplies has been especially good. There has been a little stocking up by the merchants of the smaller places, but not a There has been a little stocking up by the merchants of the smaller places, but not a great deal. The sales compare well with the sales during the fair last year.

Progress Clothing Store—We have had a good week. Our sales run away ahead of those during fair week last year. The fully 50 per cent. more than last year. The sales have been largely of the finer goods. Leading Jewelers. 12 East Washington St.

The most of the sales have been to persons residing outside of the city.

H. P. Wasson & Co.—Our trade this week has been better than usual and exceeded former fair weeks. The sales in the cloak and dress goods department led this week, as they generally do. New York Store, Mr. Gay-Our store has been crowded all week and our trade has been very large, in fact, the largest in the history of the store. This is due, of course, to the low rates on the railroads and our special effort to bring the people to our store after they got in the city. The silver statue is proving a very effective drawing card and we have advertised it extensively. On Thursday, thirty thousand people passed the statue. The trade is not confined to one or two departments, but is in all of them. Friday noon we fed 1,200 people at our lunch room.

ple are coming to the idea that they can get a fit and good goods in ready made When Clothing Store-We have had a good week. Much better than last year, and equal to other years. We have sold a great many medium grade suits. We have also sold lots of overcoats. We have probably sold half as many overcoats as suits. Our sales this year were 50 per cent bet-ter than those of last year. The World's Fair-We have done a good business. The visitors to the fair have

Vince Bruno and Herman Marer, Italian banana peddlers, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Sergeant Mefford and patrol-man Streit on charges of selling by station. Mr. P. L. Foss, director of the Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium, will speak at the young men's rally at 3:45 p. m. to-morrow. Mr. Griffith, formerly of Terre Haute, will conduct the music and will sing a solo. Lillian Johnson, who keeps a boarding house at No. 39 North Alabama street, took an ounce of morphine with suicidal intent, last night, because her lover jilted her. After an hour's work Dr. Carlon, of the City Dispensary, placed her out of danger. A stable at Park avenue and Fifteenth street, owned by Mrs. Bruce, burned last night, about 10 o'clock, with a loss of $500. There were several horses and some farming implements in the stable, but these were removed before there was any danger. Origin unknown ger. Origin unknown.

Amusements.

There was another overflow audience at the Grand last night for "Blue Jeans," and many went away unable to get seats. "Blue Jeans" will be seen for the last times this afternoon and to-night. Willie Collier comes Monday in his new comedy, by Edward E. Kidder, "A Back Number. There will be but two more performances of "A Ride for Life" at English'sthis afternoon and evening. This theater is open only one day next week-Tuesday-when Sam T. Jack's Extravaganza comes for a matinee and night of "The Bull Fighter," with living pictures. "The Boy Tramp" will be given at the Park again this afternoon and to-night, when the Neuvilles close their engagement. Monday "The Police Patrol" opens. There will be two performances of "The World" at the Empire to-day. "Hades Up to Date" is the humorously suggestive title of Reilly & Woods's spectacular extravaganza, coming next week. There is a chorus of pretty women. The English cantatrice, Lottie Lonsdale, makes her first American appearance here.

To Arrange for Chapman Revival. The executive committee which is making the arrangements for the big revival of four weeks to begin Nov. 20, will meet Wiliam Sunday, the ex-baseball fielder and the agent for Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, who has been engaged to conduct the meetings, at the Y. M. C. A. Hall Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The committee met last night and appointed several committees. The ministers and most prominent laymen of the churches who have not yet taken a hand in the movement are invited to be present at the meeting Monday afternoon.

The First Football Game. Although the regular Butler College football team has not yet been selected, a team has been picked from the eligible men to play a practice game with the team from the Indianapolis High School this afternoon. The game will be playe on the college grounds at Irvington, being called at 3:30. This is the first game of the season, and as the teams at present are about equal an interesting struggle is Mary E. Vaught's Complaint. Mary E. Vaught wants to be free from her husband, James B. Vaught. Recently he told her that he loved her no longer, and said that he could never again lavish the affection upon her which she demanded. He showed a marked distaste for her so-ciety and fell into the habit of leaving her each night after he had eaten his supper. She seeks a speedy release.

She Fell in a Coal Cellar. Maud Bailey, a young colored woman, is suing Dr. John M. Gaston, owner of the Halcyon Block, for injuries alleged to have been received by falling into an open coal cellar. The plaintiff claims that she was walking in front of the block and was unaware of the danger. She demands $5,000.

The High School's Roll. Yesterday the roll of High School No. 1 contained 1,006 names.
